Don't you think he ought to be. He is representing Michelle, and we need her to go along with any agreement. If the idea is to work things out and have no more bad mouthing going on, I think Michelle (who I have met with) needs to be on board, and she wants her own counsel. I trust Kenneth; he worked for me and with me for 13 years and even lived with my mom for several months (she was 80).
